community
work

jonas büchel

community work

june 6. 2014

jonas@urbaninstitute.lv

welcome

process

once upon a time ...

... “imagine all the people”

... ‘good old industrialized times’

eight person sleeping in shifts on 10m² people from various cultural backgrounds without any education nor any rights imagine

the tension

industrialization
social movement
settlement movement
critical thinking
individual emancipation

the birth of community work & social work

[social work]

individual - group - community

comm

unity

promoting communities - feminism rights - peace

toynbee hall/uk

community centers

hull house/us

social

from ‘abuse’ to ‘use’

planning

life

culture

deve/il
opment

community work and social planning promote the idea of communities, being places of unique but diverse identities, pro-actively fostering there very own environment ...

... social planning promotes the process of life!

[observe]

[describe]

[assemble]

build

[trust]

[network]

[design]

[plan]

social work sciences
social sciences
sociology
social psychology
theology
urbanist sciences
social geography
planning sciences
anthropology

[Coomunity Work is a powerful tool for social inclusion, promoting an intercultural dialogue between different target groups of society, fostering our all needs and values, such as tolerance, social dialogue, an active work against xenophobia, combating poverty and social exclusion and marginalization]

thus

community
development

jonas@urbaninstitute.lv +371 29410487